

Brain

Empress Dowager Cixi thought of ways to improve and strengthen China, as well as her rule. She made many reforms to modernize her country, as the lack of modernization seemed to be their weakness against European countries.

Heart

Empress Dowager Cixi likely felt a strong devotion to her country, which is why she was very determined to have a political say conduct within her country and with others outside of China. She is often criticized for her ruthlessness in order to maintain or gain political power.

Knees

She supported the modernization of her country and in her late years, she encouraged providing education for women. Empress Dowager Cixi herself lacked Confucian education and was virtually illiterate. In 1907, she issued a decree called the Regulation for Women's Education.

Hands

She worked on improving China by reforming the legal code and education system. During her rule, there were also advancements made in transportation, communication, military, and foreign policy.

Shoulder

As a powerful empress, she had many responsibilities throughout her rule, especially during a time where China wasn't as modernized or strong as today. Empress Dowager Cixi was responsible for conducting business with other countries, initiating reforms, managing wars, and modernizing China.

Back

In 1900, Empress Dowager Cixi supported the Boxer Rebellion, an anti-foreigner revolt. However, expressing her support for this rebellion was a major mistake she made, which she addressed her regret for. Many foreigners and Boxer supporters ended up dying.
