

Eyes While playing, her eyes see the batter, the catcher giving her signs for the next pitch, the ump, and the field.

Ears While playing, her ears hear the next play being called, maybe the ball getting hit, the crowd cheering, and what the ump calls.

Mouth While playing, she is yelling out the next play or how many outs there is.

Rachel Garcia

By: Anais and Brisa Banuelos

Shoulder While playing, her shoulder winds so she can pitch.

Hands Her hands are dirty because the ball has dirt and she's surrounded by dirt.

Brain She uses her brain while playing because she is processing how she is going to throw the next pitch, what the next play is going to be, and what could happen if she throws the wrong pitch.

Eyes While playing, her eyes see the batter, the catcher giving her signs for the next pitch, the ump, and the field.

Ears While playing, her ears hear the next play being called, maybe the ball getting hit, the crowd cheering, and what the ump calls.

Mouth While playing, she is yelling out the next play or how many outs there is.

Rachel Garcia

By: Anais and Brisa Banuelos

Shoulder While playing, her shoulder winds so she can pitch.

Hands Her hands are dirty because the ball has dirt and she's surrounded by dirt.

Brain She uses her brain while playing because she is processing how she is going to throw the next pitch, what the next play is going to be, and what could happen if she throws the wrong pitch.

Facts About Rachel Garcia

- Hometown: Palmdale, CA
- High School: Highland High School
- Positions: Pitcher/ First Base
- Height: 5'6
- Plays on the USA Softball Team
- In 2015, she was named the Gatorade National Softball Player of the Year

Websites

- ★ <https://uclabruins.com/sports/softball/roster/rachel-garcia/9852>
- ★ <https://www.teamusa.org/usa-softball/athletes/Rachel-Garcia>
- ★ <https://www.ncaa.com/news/softball/article/2020-07-16/rachel-garcia-tells-story-emotional-fairytale-2019-season>

